Pregnant and parenting college students face unique parenting challenges as they balance school, work, and family life. We understand and want to help.
The Young Student Parent Support Initiative at St. Cloud State believes it’s important to assure pregnant and parenting teens and young women and men are able to successfully accomplish their higher educational/post-secondary educational goals while maintaining a positive, healthy life for themselves and their children. We will provide information on resources, programs, services and support that are customized for your busy lifestyle.

Email, call or stop by to see Amanda Toppe, Coordinator of the Young Student Parent Support Initiative, with any questions or concerns you have as a pregnant or parenting student, or if you are a friend or family member of someone that is pregnant or parenting.

St. Cloud State University’s program is supported by Minnesota’s Young Student Parent Support Initiative in addressing the needs of college age pregnant and parenting young people.
